

The President's Committee on the Arts and the Humanities is a presidential advisory committee established by Executive Order to stimulate private sector support and public-private partnerships for the arts and the humanities and to raise public awareness of the benefits of culture to society. The President's Committee convenes experts, commissions research, publishes reports and conducts public meetings.

In September 1994, President Clinton appointed thirty-two private members and thirteen heads of federal agencies with cultural programs to serve on the President's Committee. The First Lady, Hillary Rodham Clinton, is Honorary Chair. Among its members are corporate executives, foundation presidents, artists, scholars and community leaders as well as the heads of national cultural agencies and institutions.
